substance abuse

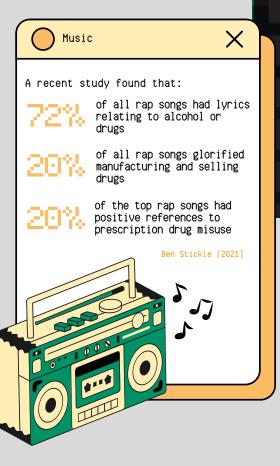

substance abuse in the media \1

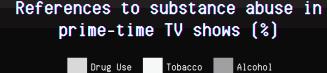

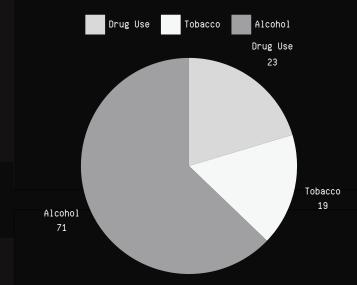

drug slang in music

🚹 Social media are popular for their challenges like dances or lip-sync ones. However, not all the popular challenges are harmless.

Exposure to movie scenes with alcohol strongly predicts early onset of drinking and binge drinking in U.S. teens

Sargent et al. (2006); Primack et al. (2009)

On TV  every 22 minutes 1 drinking scene every 57 minutes there is 1 smoking scene every 112 minutes 1 illicit drug use

The New York Times

•

Fentanyl Tainted Pills Bought on Social Media Cause Youth Drug Deaths to Soar

• = 4 Ø Chroming: Social media trend of inhaling toxic chemicals to get high takes the life of 13-year-old ra Haynes was 'fighting for her life in a hospital, her lun

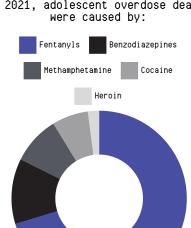

> US Crime + Justice Energy + Environment Extreme Weather A 13-year-old died in Ohio after participating in a Benadryl TikTok 'challenge'

By Michelle Watson and Carma Hassan, CNN

③ 3 minute read · Updated 11:01 AM EDT, Wed April 19, 2023 f 🛚 🗷 🗷 🐵

• 🔳 🛦

The DEA states that drug sales on social media are directly connected to overdose

Fake prescription pills, commonly laced with fentanyl and methamphetamine, are sold across most social media platforms. These counterfeit pills are often made to look just like prescription drugs.

